A. O. H. AUXILIARY
NAMES OFFICERSJanesville Woman Chosen State
Secretary—Hibernians Oppose World Court.

Miss Mamie Cantwell, Janesville, was elected state secretary of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians at the closing session of their 20th biennial state convention Wednesday morning in St. Patrick's school. Miss Cantwell succeeds Miss M. Gosselin, Janesville. Mrs. Joseph Weeks, Superior, was elected state president, along with Mrs. Jennie Himmans, Benton, vice-president; Mrs. Mary Klusmann, Madison, treasurer; and Mrs. Helen Schkade, chairman Irish history committee.

Resolution censuring British propaganda which is flooding the country, was passed by the women, who pledged themselves to do everything in their power to stop the circulation of insidious matter. Resolutions were also passed thanking the press and the city of Janesville for the cordial reception of the delegates.

A. O. H. Against World Court
Denouncing the proposed world court, the A. O. H. late Wednesday morning passed a resolution endorsing the League of Nations and recommending themselves as being against all un-American organizations. Resolutions were also passed by the members thanking the press and the city for their warm reception.

Tribute was paid to the late Prof. Michael Rohan, Milwaukee, former head of the Irish history committee and prominent Hibernian.

Information of juvenile divisions was also favored by the society and it was voted to organize divisions for children from 10 to 15 years of age. Joseph P. Callan, Milwaukee, chairman of the Irish history committee, reported Wednesday morning of the splendid work being done in the juvenile schools of the state. Edward Dampney, won second place in the national essay contest in June, the first time in the history of the contest that a Wisconsin boy had been so honored.

Election of officers was scheduled to take place Wednesday afternoon. The next convention city may also be named by the state body, but it is probable that no city will be picked for some time yet.

Making Over the Bible.
"We are presented with a new bible "written in understandable English," so we are told by a distinguished biblical scholar and teacher, Dr. Goodspeed, of the Chicago University. The statement that the new version is written in modern English presupposes that in its original text, the King James Version, there are hidden meanings and misunderstandings. It may be that the new bible will stand with some degree of interest aroused concerning it as a literary curiosity but it will never be the bible. One might as well try to impress the reader with a picture of Solomon's temple reproduced as a sky scraper, as to successfully change the form of the bible text. It has failed before and will always fail. Take away the Orientalism from the bible, the metaphor and the imagery, and while it may be a book, it will not be the bible.

Unconsciously it has become a part of the daily conversation of all of us. The Saxon harshness of speech, the ingrained words which came from repeated invasions of northern peoples into England, have been softened and made more poetical by the idioms of the Orient coming into the language with the universal distribution of the King James version of the bible. Its epic qualities, the power of its meter and the dignity with which it is all clothed, has endeared it to us as a book and laid the foundation for a pleasing fiction. There may be quarrels over translations, hair-splitting as to just what some expressions and phrases mean, but it still remains the Book of Books to millions of people. It has been translated into more languages than any other book known, been more universally read than any other published volume and is as fixed in its form as the sun and the earth in the firmament. Take away the majesty of simile and metaphor, reduce these to the common language of the day and the loss is impressively marked. Could the Song of Solomon have been written by anyone other than a person of Oriental mind, or the oratorical denunciations of Isaiah be so strong in any other translation, or the invective of Job be so powerful? Dr. Goodspeed cannot "draw out the leviathan with a hook or his tongue with a cord which thou lettest down." And until he can he will never be able to supplant the version of the bible we knew with another. How can the marvel of Oriental imagery be rendered in English of the vernacular when it says, "For ye shall go out with joy and be led forth with peace; the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the fields shall clap their hands." Impossible. It would be like a Kalamazoo trying to improve on Rembrandt.

News from the elections in Ireland sounded just like Kentucky with its gun fights.

Selfishness and Safety.
The Minneapolis Klu Klux club has started a program for safety in driving and reducing the number of automobile accidents, which may well be followed by others. Under the direction of a former mayor of the city who is head of the club's committee on public affairs, a meeting was called which was attended by groups representing all interests of the city. A report of the meeting shows that there was a dominant note all through the session—a note voiced by all—that selfishness was the foundation cause of most of the automobile accidents and tragedies which have come to be a national scandal. Not alone the driver but the pedestrian has to be reckoned with, the driver of the horse-drawn vehicle and the children on the streets and at crossings as well. All are concerned. The locomotive drivers and the crossing watchmen, the whole organization in fact of those who are in any manner concerned with traffic and that means all of us. Of this the Minneapolis Tribune says:
Makers of artificial limbs do a thriving business as a result of motor car accidents. Insurance companies have unlovely records as to the results of careless driving. Hospitals and doctors give an almost amazing share of their time to the treatment of motor car victims. Traffic officials have a hard time of it keeping away from cases of "narrow" due to the exactions upon them as guardians of the public. If it isn't the reckless or incompetent driver, it is the heedless, foolish pedestrian with whom they have to deal from hour to hour—almost from moment to moment. The human equation is to reckon with. It can be controlled somewhat by wholesome example, somewhat by the sense of ever-impending danger, somewhat by a community sentiment, but it is so shot through with the selfish spirit that a police boot of discipline is indispensable as a salient.

Somebody says that jazz is dying. But all one looks over the new phonograph records he concludes that the pall bearers have not yet been selected.

Mr. Davis on Immigration.
Secretary Davis has come back to the United States after a trip abroad studying labor and immigration, more convinced than ever of the justice of the immigration restriction law but with an idea to many necessities of change so that an injustice will hereafter not be worked to the detriment of the immigrant in arriving quotas. He wants the remedy against over supply of quotas to be applied at the point of embarkation, but it is so shot through with the selfish spirit that a police boot of discipline is indispensable as a salient.

Government Backing for Checks
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Washington.—A brand-new idea concerning money has been presented to the American government and is receiving consideration at the hands of the Federal Reserve board. It is that the government should exercise the same general responsibility for the par value of checks that it does for the par value of paper currency.
The idea springs from the long standing controversy over the par check collection system, instituted by the federal reserve banks.
It was only 10 years ago that domestic exchange was almost as important in financial transactions as foreign exchange. The dollar, when it was in the form of a check, would be worth less in New York than in Chicago, or vice versa, according to the flow of business. When the federal reserve act was passed, 10 years ago, provision was made for a par check clearing system. A gold settlement now amounts to between six and seven hundred million dollars. It is composed of gold reserves of the member banks of the federal reserve system, and is chiefly located at Washington under the custody of the treasurer of the United States.
In the natural flow of business more checks will be presented from one section of the country than another, the course of a day's business. Under the old system, it was necessary for the section which had presented the most checks to ship gold or currency to the cities which had cashed the checks. Now these debts are cleared through the gold settlement fund.
Chicago will advise New York that it has cashed more checks for New York than New York has cashed for Chicago. The figures are telegraphed to Washington and the officials there pay Chicago by taking part of New York's gold and adding it to Chicago's pile. The next day the situation may be reversed and gold will be sent down a few figures on the wire. The actual gold is never touched. The federal reserve banks maintain a private wire system and every day all the information on the payment of checks is assembled and the changes in ownership noted.
Formerly, when it was necessary actually to ship the gold or currency from one city to another to settle accounts, there were occasional losses in transit—in railroad wrecks, from bank robbers and in various other ways. This, as well as the express charges on the shipments, has all been done away with.
Formerly, when one section became heavily indebted to another, the rate of exchange fell, just as happens in foreign exchange. With all accounts balanced every day by telegraph, this no longer is the case.
However, it costs something to cash and collect checks. Suppose a St. Louis grocer goes to Boston to make some purchases. He pays the Boston merchant with a check on St. Louis bank. The Boston bank must send this check to St. Louis. Through the gold settlement fund the actual balance is adjusted immediately, but the little slip of paper must be returned and the bookkeeping must be done.
There has been a good deal of controversy about who should pay collection charges, which usually amount to 10 cents on each $1,000.
The new idea which has been presented to the Federal Reserve board is that Uncle Sam should pay the bill. Charles de B. Claiborne of New Orleans and L. R. Adams of Atlanta, representing the National and State Bankers Protective Association, laid a comprehensive plan before the board, the most interesting suggestion in which is that the government should bear this check collecting cost.
The theory on which the suggestion is based is that the bank check has come to be the form in which most of the money transactions in this country are made. This is true of no other country in the world. Americans are paying their debts by check more and more each year. It was not long ago that only very large deals were consummated by the bank check. Now many a man who goes into a store to buy a hat will pay for it with a check. Some men carry only some loose change and a pocket checkbook. The check, therefore, has become a sort of circulating medium. Wages are paid by check and frequently the store owner will take his check to the grocery store and pay his bill with it, receiving change in currency. The grocer, in turn, will use the check to pay money he owes. The American people spend between twenty and thirty billion dollars each week in the form of checks. Check transactions amount to ninety per cent of all money transactions in the United States.
In such a situation it is urged that the check has become a public utility just as currency and coin and public utilities. Congress has authorized the treasury at any time necessary, to buy bullion to maintain the parity of all money with gold. It now is urged that congress should permit the use of federal funds to maintain the parity of all checks.
The precise method suggested for bringing this about is as follows: Let this cost be charged against the surplus earnings of the federal reserve banks. Under the law, no federal reserve bank is permitted to pay dividends exceeding six per cent. All over and above that amount must be paid over to the United States government as a franchise tax. The advocates of this new plan suggest that by charging the check collecting cost against these excess earnings the burden will be taken off the banks and placed on the government, as the surplus earnings to be paid to the government will be diminished by the amount of the cost of this service.
The plan is attracting a good deal of interest among bankers, business men, and economists. The board has laid it before the federal reserve advisory council and a report from that body is expected next month. A committee of governors of federal reserve banks has registered disapproval of the plan, there being some highly technical ramifications which affect earnings assets of federal reserve banks and which, the governors believe, render the plan unworkable. These remain to be worked out.

S. consuls passing upon prospective immigrants before they pay passage money. We owe most of the bad features of the immigration operation to the greed of the steamship companies which care nothing as to the individual so long as passage money is paid. We have had sad and serious cases of overloading quotas and the race for port at the last minute has come to be a scandal. Hundreds of immigrants have been sent home, others have found that they were separated from families and still others having no business here have been permitted to land. It is to be hoped that Secretary Davis will make such strong recommendations that the operation of the law will work no injustice nor will it permit any person labeled "undesirable" to land here.

"What's the matter with the democratic party?" cries a Southern newspaper. Well, up here in Wisconsin, there is nothing with which to have anything the matter.

Europe would settle down and the Ruhr war would be over in a minute if America would agree to pay all the war debts and reparations. Why does America hold back?

JUST FOLKS

WHEN YOU KNOW THERE'S A BASS ON YOUR LINE
There's a thrill to the whirr of the partridge in fall and a thrill to the hoik of the duck. And a thrill to the sportsman, whatever the game. When he knows that his bullet has struck.
Oh, the side-out of doors, is a red-blooded book for a red-blooded man to enjoy. With the sun beating down and the wind in his face he's a man with the heart of a boy. And it's boy that I am, though my temples are gray—it's boy that I am, though I'm forty-nine. And the thrill that I crave is the thrill that you get when you know there's a bass on your line!
There's a time when forgetfulness wipes out your cares and shuts out the world from your view. When the wrongs you have borne are erased from your mind and none is existing but you; There's the high peak of bliss where no stranger intrudes and where nothing distracts you.
Where from sorrow and heartache and hurt and despair and hunger and thirst you are free; There's a brief space of time when you're conscious of naught but a glorious thrill down your spine. And a tug you have felt and a leap you have seen, and you know there's a bass on your line!

It is seldom we're blinded to wrongs that exist. It is seldom our senses grow numb; By countless distractions we're buffeted round, except when the big moments come. And but for the moment life gives us are big; not the we're allowed to forget. The burdens we carry, the pain that we bear, the failures and sorrows we've met. But they all disappear in a flash when it comes that time when the minute gives us a thrill. When you see the red head and you hear the reel click and you know there's a bass on your line!

Who's Who Today
GOV. JONATHAN M. DAVIS
Jonathan Davis, governor of Kansas, who has tossed his hat into the Democratic ring for the presidential nomination next summer, is a native of the state he now governs.

Davis was born in Bourbon county, Kan., April 26, 1871. He was educated in the public schools of his county and later in the University of Kansas and Nebraska.
He has been a practical farmer and breeder of live stock. At present he owns and operates a stock farm of 1,700 acres in Bourbon county. He served as president of a local bank.
He was married September 25, 1894, to Miss Mollie P. Davis. There are three children, Russell G. Davis, now in active management of the home farm, who was in the aviation service during the world war; Mrs. Mary Francis McDermott, a teacher in the schools at Ford, Kan., and Lois Nell Davis, a teacher at Bronson, near the old home.

Gov. Davis' literary tastes have led him to become a great reader of history, biography and fiction. He is a keen, vigorous, forceful writer, and an earnest, fluent public speaker.

LOOKING BACKWARD
FORTY YEARS AGO
Aug. 29, 1883.—T. T. Croft, former mayor, has been appointed agent for the St. Paul road in this city, succeeding William B. Hayes, who has been transferred to another field. It is claimed that Janesville has the champion boot-maker in Joseph Kelly, who pegged and heeled twelve boots in an hour and 59 minutes for a wage.
THIRTY YEARS AGO
Aug. 29, 1893.—Local railroad men feel sure there will be a strike on the St. Paul road within three days as the company is firm in its decision to effect a cut in wages and employees are just as firm to strike if such action is taken. The latter state that the cut is unnecessary because of the recent pickup in business.
TWENTY YEARS AGO
Aug. 29, 1903.—"When Johnny Comes Marching Home" made a big hit at the Myers theater last night. It was the opening theatrical attraction of a boys' tour. The boys have been camping ten days at Lake Delavan. J. C. Kling, superintendent, had charge. "The state barbers' commission has resumed its labors in this city after working some time in Milwaukee. They will be here for three more months anyway.

TEN YEARS AGO
Aug. 29, 1913.—No date has been set for opening the industrial school, but it will not be until the last of September. Charles Hill will again be principal. Elsie O'Hara will be at the Myers Sept. 7 in "In the Dublin." A carnival at Spring Brook continues to attract large crowds. Shows are clean and good.

Personal Health Service
By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author
WHAT DO YOU DRINK?
At least five pints of water per day is required by the body in moderate weather. Much more than this is required in hot weather. The water intake for adults, tea and coffee in moderation are wholesome and rarely if ever cause digestive disturbances or nervousness. No child under 12 should drink these beverages.
One who is very hot and very thirsty, after profuse sweating, may safely drink all the water he craves, provided the water is not very cold. If a workman gulps down large quantities of ice water or chilled water when in this condition he is apt to suffer from cramps and intense muscle pains for his folly. It is unwise to reach the solar plexus such a shocking blow. Drink warm water at first, and later cooling water may be taken freely.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Aene is Just Pimple.
What is aene? What causes it? Is it common to have poor appetites in the early stages of tuberculosis?—B. S.
Answer.—(1) Pimple from blackheads (2) worms biting the oil ducts (pores) of the skin—germs which are present universally upon the skin. (3) Poor nutrition. Persons seem more susceptible, the why they are we do not know (4) Yes, but poor appetites is a symptom of many diseases as well, and often the victim of early tuberculosis has an excellent appetite. If you suspect tuberculosis go once to a good doctor and be examined.
Height and Weight of a Normal Woman.
Kindly print the exact height and weight of a normal adult woman.—C. E.
Answer.—If you mean the average height and weight of women of 30, it is about 5 feet 4 inches, 125 pounds. But the "average" in a matter like this is necessarily rather arbitrary. Send for a graph on this subject if you wish.

Q. Is it against the rules to redouble in Progressive Auction?
A. There is nothing in the laws of Auction prohibiting a redouble and there are no special rules for Progressive Auction. However, in most progressive games the unwritten law against redoubling is observed. The reason for this is that the game is not played for rubbers but for high total score, and if redoubling is indulged in, reckless bidding and a terminating factor.
Q. Do many actors and actresses of the stage succeed on the screen?
A. J. Few screen successes come from the stage and vice versa. Clayton Hamilton says that film and stage technique are separate and distinct. The camera is much slower and more deliberate than acting for an actual audience; every movement, gesture, and detail is studied and rehearsed. The camera magnifies what it sees and a human face in a "close-up" may measure 15 feet from top to bottom. The camera of an actor may sweep through two or three feet of film. Pictures also place a high valuation on youth. Few women learn to act on the stage until they are over 30, but on the screen, where every line is greatly magnified, most women look old after they are 25. Devotees of the spoken drama will go to hear a Sarah Bernhardt, but the clientele of the movies demands fresh faces.
Q. How Houdini ever revealed the secret of his many tricks?
A. A Houdini was quoted in a recent issue of the Theater Magazine as follows: "When I was a young man on my first visit to New York, broke and hungry, I offered to exhibit my talents. And I explained their nature to four of the biggest newspapers in town for the sum of twenty dollars. Everyone turned me down. The secret will go with me to the grave. If it were anything in the nature of a contribution to science, anything that might help humanity, I would surely disclose it, but it is not. It is merely a peculiar talent to make the improbable in several generations so oddly constituted. For one thing, I was born with an inordinate physical strength."
Q. How is infantile paralysis communicated?
A. J. J.
A. The latest theory is that infantile paralysis is spread by rats and fleas, much as the bubonic plague.

HOROSCOPE
THURSDAY, AUGUST 30, 1923.
This is rather an uncertain day, according to astrology, for while Neptune is in benefic aspect, Saturn, Venus and Uranus are all adverse. During this rule the mind is likely to be fluctuating and exceedingly sensitive to impressions that are depressing. Women may be especially susceptible to the sinister influences of the stars, which tend toward destructive or despondent thoughts. The trend of the human mind is likely to be curious, and for that reason research and even invention is subject to the best direction of the stars. Saturn is ill-omened for the aged, or for those who represent the past in their political policy. Under the planets' government, thrones may totter and rulers may be in peril. This is read as rather an unfavorable wedding day, since Saturn appears to forecast inharmonious dissolution. There is a sign said to preface content between the sexes for power and control, which tend toward different opinions on some national problem, women holding to one view with bitter tenacity. The seers prophesy that peace will be reached now before and that people will align themselves against war. Notwithstanding opposition, to force of arms, there will be another world war, in which the United States must take part, if those who read the stars are to be believed. Oil interests which have been subject to the most varied influences should benefit slightly at this time. Religious organizations may suffer at this time, owing to the recent partial eclipse of the moon. Parsons, who is in the hospital, should watch the family's health at this time. They should pay special attention to business affairs, which may present certain perplexities. Children born on this day may need direction all through life and will succeed best as employees. These subjects of Virgo are usually reserved, but of change, although they are really industrious and practical. (Copyright, 1923, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR TECHNICAL TRAINING
London.—Two-thirds of the boys raised in London enter casual trades, as unskilled labor and shopmen, and only 13 percent of them enter the skilled trades. These figures, which have been prepared in the interests of a campaign to furnish greater technical education for London's youth, are said to be higher in unskilled and lower in skilled trades than any other large city in western Europe or America. This is the result of insufficient technical training in the elementary and primary schools, the lower classes, which forces the boys to work at very early age. The campaign which is being backed by many of the more organized labor will attempt to arouse interest in the establishing of training centers throughout England.

SAYS SPIES GUARD

"SOFT DRINK" BARS

Elaborate System of Espionage

Charged by Beloit Alderman, Investigator.

Beloit—That an elaborate and thorough system of espionage exists in Beloit to protect "soft drink establishments" from sudden raids was revealed by Alderman Leslie Hammill of the city council police committee this week. Mr. Hammill has been making a study of the prohibition enforcement situation in Beloit and declares he has been troubled by spies.

In one instance, he says, a spy knocked twice on the window glass of a soft drink parlor as he entered the door then fled. Alderman Hammill succeeded in getting into another "shadow" could give the alarm. "He had a sword and was about to begin his investigation when a stranger appeared at the bar and tapped twice on the mahogany. The bar-tender gave an understanding nod."

Following the shadow enter another soft drink parlor nearby, Alderman Hammill followed with two policemen and learned the man was a relative of the proprietor of the place he had just been in, where the man had denied knowing the "shadow."

Effective raids are difficult, Mr. Hammill said, as most surplus stock is kept in adjoining buildings or in well-mouth containers in a sink in which water is running constantly.

COOLIDGE AIMING AT U. S. ECONOMY

Careful Expenditures Form First Objective of New President.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1923, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington—Enough has been said by President Coolidge in conference with his cabinet members of congress to indicate that he wants to make a record in government expenditures. He has selected this as his first major objective. Chairman Madden of the house committee on appropriations, a close consultation with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, has given a hint of Coolidge's second objective—reduction of taxation if possible.

While these two things might seem to be interwoven, there is still a third problem which overshadows them both—the soldier bonus. Although nobody has said much about it publicly, it is a fact that hardly a discussion develops among government officials about fiscal affairs that doesn't wind up in the vagaries of whether Congress will or will not pass a bonus bill and pass it over a presidential veto if Mr. Coolidge should object.

The president has not made known his attitude on the bonus and probably will not do so until he finds himself compelled to speak. While governor of Massachusetts Mr. Coolidge signed a bonus bill, so in principle, at least, he favors it. That is, he favors the matter reserves itself to him into a question of whether the government can afford a bonus. That's where the significance of Chairman Madden's statement lies. Mr. Madden opposed the bonus last session. It is now comes out in favor of a program of reducing taxation. Having proposed tax reductions immediately, he is talking with the president and secretary of the treasury, makes it possible to draw the conclusion that he has the moral support of the executive in his project.

Taxation and Bonus
But there can be no reduction of taxation if at the same time the government undertakes added financial burdens in the form of soldiers' compensation. Which course, therefore, should the federal government take? Should it continue as at present and squeeze a bonus out of the revenues now coming in, especially when the administration has in the last two years not only been able to balance the budget but actually show a surplus? Or should the administration resist the bonus advocates and make a drive for lower taxation?

The Political Angle
From a political viewpoint few people are able to estimate which would be more effective. There are many more million taxpayers of course than there are soldiers entitled to a bonus. The support of the big business and financial centers of the country would be given the Coolidge administration if at the same time that a bonus was shelved taxes were reduced. The agricultural west is an uncertain quantity, but a program of lower taxes would tend to hold the east solidly behind the republican administration—that's one theory by which the politics of the hour is being calculated.

Senator Smoot, chairman of the senate finance committee, has said that he didn't look for a reduction of taxation at the next session. But there is no doubt that the western insurgents, especially the LaFollette group, will press for tax revision, especially on smaller incomes, and for a raising of the taxes on higher incomes. If the western senators are going to take the initiative in tax revision, the regulars, who want to keep the administration lined up with eastern sentiment, would prefer to control the situation by offering a program of their own. It is inconceivable that the administration would sit silently while the insurgents offered programs of tax revision.

Sales Tax and Bonus
Can the government reduce the taxes and pay a bonus too? The advocates of sales tax think so. This introduces still another element into the controversy as there are many people in congress who think the present system of taxation could be simplified by a sales tax, and they are glad of the excuse that the bonus situation offers to renew their advocacy of a sales tax.

The announcement of Chairman Madden, however, will end the present battle between a bonus and tax reduction, with the administration watching carefully the trend of public opinion to see whether the country would rather add to its expenditures, with a possibility of increased taxation, or keep on for a few years with its policy of reducing the public debts and taxes generally.

MAC NIDER ROASTS BROOKHART TALK

Ironwood, Mich.—Hanford MacNider, former national commander of the American Legion, scored Senator Brookhart indirectly in addressing the state legion convention here, when he said this country had no business listening to the advice of those men who, returning from Russia, urge us to recognize her when Russia is sending propaganda and men here to tear this government asunder.
